William Waddilove

IEng CEnv FIAgrE

William has been a member of IAgrE for 50 years and an active member of the West Midlands branch since the mid-1980s. He has served as Branch publicity officer, secretary, and Branch representative on Council. William has diligently submitted reports on many of the West Midlands branch events, and these have frequently appeared in the Landwards.

One of William's passions is for the preservation and recognition of the great work done by our forefathers in Agricultural Engineering. To this end, he formed the Pioneering Technology Specialist Interest Group in the early 2000s. Under this banner, William has arranged a wide range of visits and talks to sites and establishments where members have been able to see the great work done by the pioneers in our industry.

In recent years, William has been invaluable to the West Midlands branch, coordinating many of the events and attending most of those he did not organise. He has also broadened the scope of events available to IAgrE members by publicising other organisations' events to which Institution members are invited.
