Agriculture ■ Forestry ■ Horticulture ■ Environment ■ Amenity

The Institution of Agricultural Engineers is the professional body for engineers, scientists, technologists and managers in agriculture and the environment, agri-technology and allied landbased industries.

A comprehensive list of products and services available to members of the IAgrE. The Institution is always looking to expand its offer to our Membership.

Developing your Career ...

Designatory letters

Demonstrate your professional status to your colleagues and peers with IAgrE designatory letters. These indicate that you have achieved a certain level of knowledge and competence within your industry. The IAgrE awards designatory letters to its Associates (AIAgrE), Associate Members (AMIAgrE), Members (MIAgrE), Fellows (FIAgrE) and Honorary Fellows (HonFIAgrE).

Professional registration

Enhance your career prospects by demonstrating your commitment and professionalism with these peer-assessed and internationally recognised professional qualifications. The IAgrE is licensed by the Engineering Council and the Society for the Environment to assess applicants and award the following registrations:

- Chartered Engineer (CEng)
- Incorporated Engineer (IEng)
- Engineering Technician (EngTech)
- Chartered Environmentalist (CEnv)
- Registered Environmental Technician (REnvTech)

IAgrE will help you work towards your registration and the recording tool mycareerpath can make it simple to record your experience.

CPD

IAgrE offers an unrivalled selection of CPD opportunities. From Council Meetings, monthly Branch Meetings, lectures and visits, specialist lectures, technical events and workshops, to trade shows, courses and conferences, IAgrE offers something for everyone. IAgrE also offers an on-line CPD planning and recording tool to all its members.

Mentoring

The IAgrE mentoring service can link you to a suitable volunteer mentor, who will support you to achieve your goals - our IAgrE mentors gain just as much from supporting others. (If you would like to volunteer as a mentor please let us know.)

Awards – celebrating your achievements and success

The IAgrE rewards our members' aspirations, enterprise and excellence with a range of annual awards. These recognise the exceptional achievements of individuals working in the landbased sector, from the well-known specialist to the fledgling engineer or technician.

Landbased Engineering, Technician and Environmental Jobs

Our specialised jobsboard enables you to look for jobs which match your skills. By uploading your CV, you can get yourself noticed by the industry's top employers and recruitment agencies.

Access unrivalled knowledge resources ...

IAgrE Publications

The IAgrE publishes a range of materials produced to the highest editorial standards by a team of specialist editors who are leading experts in their fields. Publications include:

- Biosystems Engineering the journal of the European Society of Agricultural Engineers and owned by IAgrE. From time to time special editions covering specialist topics are published. You'll find the latest research and information of the highest quality in your field when you subscribe; the journal is available at a discount for IAgrE members
- Landwards magazine is one of the IAgrE's most valued membership benefits, keeping members up to date with news and developments in the sector
- eNews which brings together news, articles and information from the IAgrE global community
- eBusiness News is a monthly roundup of news and developments across the world of agricultural engineering

Other Publications

- Engineering for Agriculture - A World of Opportunity - We have produced a brochure illustrating the varied opportunities open to anyone choosing a career in engineering and technology for agriculture and landbased technologies. We also support the website landbasedengineering.com a "one-stop shop" for potential candidates pursuing a career in this industry
- Landwards e-Xtra is an ad hoc electronic supplement to Landwards. Occasional papers are published, in an electronic format only, via the medium of Landwards e-Xtra. A brief synopsis will appear in Landwards and any papers published will be archived on the website
- Student eNews - news and information of interest to students and those involved in education within the landbased sector
- LTA Newsletters - information of note for the Landbased Technician Accreditation community
- Health & Safety Advice & Resources – Our H&S group is very active at IAgrE and offers a full range of advice and experience for members. IAgrE offer specialist H & S programmes including the Electrical Safety Management 1 Day course.

IAgrE Library and Archives

Our archive has a unique collection of digital and printed resources on all areas of agricultural engineering and technology. Members have access to the world-renowned library at Cranfield University. Contact the Secretariat for details.

- SaWMA Journals - In 1986, the Soil and Water Management Association (SaWMA) merged with the Institution of Agricultural Engineers where its activities were amalgamated with the IAgrE Soil & Water group. Prior to that date, SaWMA published its own journal copies of which have been digitised and may be found on our website www.iagre.org

Conferences & Events

IAgrE organises a wide range of conferences & events to ensure their members have ample opportunity to gain CPD through networking, technical meetings etc.

Membership of EurAgEng

Corporate members of IAgrE automatically become members of EurAgEng, giving access to the wider community of Europe. Be the first to hear about international conferences, special interest groups and contacts. Non-corporate members of IAgrE may join EurAgEng if they wish.

Social Media

Local Branches

There is a community of IAgrE members near you which provide professional networking opportunities. The level of involvement is up to you, from attending an event or giving a talk, to joining the branch committee. No matter how much time you can commit, your local branch committee would be delighted to hear from you.

Specialist Groups

The IAgrE hosts a number of specialist groups covering aspects of forestry engineering, precision livestock farming, and health and safety which enable engineering and technology professionals, academics and students to come together to discuss research and innovation in their sectors. You can participate in a number of ways - using social media, attending an organised event or by joining a committee. See our website for a full list of Technical & Specialist Groups

Volunteering

IAgrE members can get involved with a broad range of volunteering opportunities from being a mentor or qualification assessor, joining an IAgrE Committee, to organising meetings and events. Volunteering will give you great personal satisfaction whilst being an enjoyable and rewarding experience which enhances both your professional and personal development.

Shaping the future

The IAgrE is a voice for the profession and represents the views of its members on a wide range of professional and technological issues. During the course of a year, the IAgrE responds to many consultations from Parliament, Local Government, the European Union and other agencies. The responses submitted include contributions from our members so you really do have a means to offer your opinion and help us shape the future.

Developing the next generation of landbased engineers and technicians

The IAgrE accredits undergraduate and postgraduate courses ensuring that the students have the tools they need for a career in our exciting industry. IAgrE has a range of careers resources on our website.

Landbased Technician Accreditation

IAgrE runs the Landbased Technician Accreditation (LTA) scheme, the LTA Parts scheme and Parloursafe programme which are industry supported accreditation schemes for technicians working in the landbased sector, ensuring they are recognised as professional experts.

College Lecturers

IAgrE offers on-line access to a diverse range of technical information, speakers, experts and training materials to support the work of lecturers, trainers and instructors.

Supporting you ...

Professional ethics advice and support

The trust you derive from being seen as a professional is one of the many advantages of being a member of the IAgrE, but it also means you have certain ethical responsibilities. The IAgrE can help you to understand the demands of professional ethical standards with dedicated guidance, case studies and resources.

Certificates

Members of the IAgrE from Associate Member upwards are provided with a certificate free of charge. Associates may purchase a certificate, please apply through the IAgrE shop.
